Billie Ray Wiles

1930-2015

Beloved Husband, Father, Grandfather, Great-Grandfather and Friend to many went home to join the our Heavenly Father. After a long career as an electrical engineer and a passionate, insatiable love of electronics, cameras, microscopes and amateur radio, he has found peace and comfort with Our Lord and Savior. He proudly served our country during the Korean War as a member of the United States Navy and his proudest career accomplishment was working on the positioning controls that guided the landing of lunar modules on the moon. Despite the challenges of recent years, he never lost his wacky, zany and amazing sense of humor finding joy in making others smile and laugh.

Left to celebrate, honor and cherish his life are his wife of almost 57 years, Joan, son, Lance, daughter, Dawn and 6 grand children, Lauren, Cameron, Tiffanie, Brandon, Blaine and Ryan 2 great grand children, Felicity and Heidi and sister Janet.

A graveside celebration will be held at 10:00am at Davis Greenlawn, 3900 BF Terry Blvd, Rosenberg, TX on Monday, August 3, 2015.

“ Hi Dad -Today was hard - mom didn't do so well. She misses you so much, everything about you. I always dreaded special events, it seems with the way our family was, a birthday, anniversary or holiday was marked by some other event - however 7/28 is all yours and anymore, I am unsure of what 8/8 is except this would have been 58 - to some extent I guess it still is. Only one more potentially hard time to go- but this one is probably the hardest - such fond memories of this upcoming date. We miss you. There is a song that says you never know what you have or had til it's gone - now, I understand that. I thought I understood with Courtney and Kris, but I didn't. Now I understand so much. See so much and realize how right you are. I love you dad and I miss you terribly - it never lets up - doesn't get any easier and I certainly have no better understanding now that I did, except for that one piece that was missing over the last 4 years. All my love -Lance

“ HAPPY FATHERS DAY DAD! On this Fathers Day I find myself heavy in heart, and missing you. I still cannot believe but am accepting to the best of my ability the knowledge that you are gardening in the great fields, pastures and fertile grounds of Heaven. I bet the veggies are growing bigger and better and am certain that you are sharing your life with others, helping, giving guidance and fitting in real well. I am certain you are catching up with MiMi and glad to be with her again. I know at least 2 of your 4 grandkids are remembering you today and at least 1 of your offspring misses you like crazy. I love you dad. I miss you more than ever. One thing I always made sure of is that you never spent any Fathers Day alone, or at least not without a visit from me when I was in the same town. I cherish that menu you wrote on last year documenting who was with you and who was so obviously and blatantly absent. I love you dad. Even though I will spend the day alone, I know you are with me in my heart and throughout all the day. I miss you. All my love - Lance

“Hi Dad -1 Year. Hard to believe. I was so upset on Father's Day; put in a post and somehow it got lost. It is not any easier today that yesterday - hard to believe that you have settled into the place in Heaven. I would be lying if I said that this did not rock my world in a cray weird way. It has rocked the core, made me reassess things, re-evaluate the importance of things and determine what is worth "worry" and what is just to be accepted. 2 of your grandkids remember you often and comment on you. From there a few friends still stay in touch. What terrifies me is how quickly things changed and we are where we are. God has used this as a time to reflect and determine what our role is in this life. What is important about legacies and what is not. I am so grateful for the days I was able to spend with you everyday all day at the hospital. I am still hoping for some kind of sign or assurance from you. But I am getting by the best I can, picking up the remaining pieces. I feel like I have to do as you did at CPBC, in the background you are always the one to help restore things to the way they were or fix things that are broken and I am still doing that. I hope as you look down on mom and me that you are seeing what you want to see even though I know you are not happy about my loneliness and struggle and I also know you are still worried about my health. But you are closer now to God than I am, I mean you are there with Him, so talk to Him about that, I am sure he will at the very least assure you that everything is going to be ok. Know that you are loved very much. Missed deeply and that a day does not pass that I do not look back at those 14 days and wonder if we made all the right choices, but more importantly, the 5 years earlier should have been lived differently and more should have been done. I love you dad - losing you hurts so much. But forever you are in my heart and my DNA. I miss you so much!

I just wish I had known then what I know now what was missing to help you over the last ~5 years that could have helped. And finally, yesterday I got to see what you saw.

The reality of the finality has definitely hit, one more special day to endure without you and then a new year, new hopes, new challenges and missing you more and more.

“ Somewhere down the line, and it's different for everybody, you find that the waves are only 80 feet tall. Or 50 feet tall. And while they still come, they come further apart. You can see them coming. An anniversary, a birthday, or Christmas, or landing at O'Hare. You can see it coming, for the most part, and prepare yourself. And when it washes over you, you know that somehow you will, again, come out the other side. Soaking wet, sputtering, still hanging on to some tiny piece of the wreckage, but you'll come out.

Take it from an old guy. The waves never stop coming, and somehow you don't really want them to. But you learn that you'll survive them. And other waves will come. And you'll survive them too.

If you're lucky, you'll have lots of scars from lots of loves. And lots of shipwrecks.

I cherish every scar, every ship wreck, everything...

I love you and miss you! So much!

“ Hi Dad...

Someone shared this with me yesterday, it says things so well... I wish I could say you get used to people dying. But I never did. I don't want to. It tears a hole through me whenever somebody I love dies, no matter the circumstances. But I don't want it to "not matter". I don't want it to be something that just passes. My scars are a testament to the love and the relationship that I had for and with that person. And if the scar is deep, so was the love. So be it. Scars are a testament to life. Scars are a testament that I can love deeply and live deeply and be cut, or even gouged, and that I can heal and continue to live and continue to love. And the scar tissue is stronger than the original flesh ever was. Scars are a testament to life. Scars are only ugly to people who can't see. As for grief, you'll find it comes in waves. When the ship is first wrecked, you're drowning, with wreckage all around you. Everything floating around you reminds you of the beauty and the magnificence of the ship that was, and is no more. And all you can do is float. You find some piece of the wreckage and you hang on for a while. Maybe it's some physical thing. Maybe it's a happy memory or a photograph. Maybe it's a person who is also floating. For a while, all you can do is float. Stay alive. In the beginning, the waves are 100 feet tall and crash over you without mercy. They come 10 seconds apart and don't even give you time to catch your breath. All you can do is hang on and float. After a while, maybe weeks, maybe months, you'll find the waves are still 100 feet tall, but they come further apart. When they come, they still crash all over you and wipe you out. But in between, you can breathe, you can function. You never know what's going to trigger the grief. It might be a song, a picture, a street intersection, the smell of a cup of coffee. It can be just about anything...and the wave comes crashing. But in between waves, there is life.

“ Hey Dad -

Finding words are so hard to express what am I feeling. But each day is getting harder and harder...today is 2 weeks. I can't believe 2 weeks, Friday is a month. I am so overwhelmed. I am trying the best I can.

The differences that are necessary in my life and health are beginning to come together. But still a long way to go. But I am getting there. I miss you...I looked at the call logs and cherish every single call I have on my caller ID...missing your emails.

I am still leaning on your wisdom, example and lessons to guide the way that I go forward, but everything is done to honor your life and legacy.

I look back and wish we had said more I love you's, had more hugs, had more kisses. But yesterday is a memory, today is the present that God has given us and tomorrow is not guaranteed.

I am still trying to figure out if that was you telling me not to worry about crossing the street anymore. Don't look both ways, just keep your eyes straight ahead on the destination...that truck could have hurt me real bad.

Anyway, I ramble which I think that I have a trademark on.

Thinking of you often, missing you always, loving you forever!

“ Good Morning Dad....a week. Almost a week, and almost 2 since.

I keep thinking this is just a really bad dream and I will wake up, but I have to sleep before I can wake up. Please wake up now. I feel such an emptiness, the phone, the emails, the time; the talks, the meals...all of it.

Rough day today. Just missing you like crazy. We never know what we have until it is gone. But I always have you and you always have me.

I love you soooooooooo much!

“ Good morning Dad...

Well getting ready to go to church, the same one that you were going to go to Men's Bible study at with me that we talked about. They have been great to us. You will love these folks, because they act and do like we were used to at CPBC.

Anyway, a little freaked this morning about that dream last night...what did you mean exactly when you said "Hurry up, I am waiting in the car across the street?" So I am trying to figure that out as well as when you told me you want me to come with you and mom to Catalina Island.

Anyway, getting ready to get to church. Been several weeks so I will be glad to get back. Wish you felt like going with me today - I think you will enjoy it; but I know you will be there.

I love you!

Missing you...my grief / mourning is insurmountable...wish you would make my phone ring!

“ One of my Dads favorite jokes," Hey so in so is that yr new car out front. It is, well I just saw paint all over the right side of it. " The person would come in with a panic expression and just glare at my Dad as he was cracking up. They would fall for it every time. We must have heard that joke 100 times.....

Love you, Dad

“ Good Morning Dad!

*So I w your expectationsoke up with a crazy thought or question.
What were you doing at this time bac in 1958?*

Were you nervous? Were you calm? What were all the feelings you were having 12 hours before the big time?

What were your dreams? Your hopes?

Thinking back...how many of those dreams and hopes came through in a way that exceeded your expectations? Looking back for me, there are so many things that exceeded what I expected in the years following.

Regardless of what you think - You are my hero!

I am missing you more each day, as the grief and loss becomes more real. Normal, what ever we, whatever I thought it was has changed. IZ find more anger as each day goes by, not at you, but at the result. You are definately right - the system is broken and seems more so each day.

Did you see the Republican debate - oh wow....I know you see what is happening. Man it really is getting crazy.

But by god's grace and mercy, America will be great again.

I love you dad...Lance

“ Good Morning Dad.....

Well we got some sleep last night, finally. I know I am supposed to be quiet about things, but today I have appointments with the very people that make you the most uncomfortable. But I promise that there is nothing to worry about in all this. These folks are here to help you and mom and I promise that is all that this is about, getting what you asked me to do done.

Thanks for the great times we are having in the quiet times, even though things are a little chaotic and seems like there is no end to the drama, but you know I am going to be strong and make sure you are protected and that mom is taken care of.

Well, getting ready to go to work and get Friday done the best I can, all things considered. I don't know that I have the strength and it is not fair to you to ask you for the strength I lack. But, I cannot keep going on without knowing that you are ok with the steps I take, but I promise, you and mom are first and that is most important to me.

I don't want to make this too hard on you, but this is so hard! Can you give me a call sometime today, just a quick one.

Meeting with the Chief Medical Officer, they are concerned about the diagnosis as he is saying that things are not adding up. But don't worry, I will handle it and make sure you get the help you need.

Well, I owe, I owe so off to work I go.

I love you; I miss you and I know we will be OK, God has promised that and continues to give me assurances on that.

Did you see that Republican Primary Debate last night. Wow what a ride right? Let me know what you thought.

*I love you!

Well another rough night of sleep. But the days go on as hard as it is without you. We are hanging in there and hanging together so that is the good part, the bad part is that I am missing your 2PM and 8PM phone calls, but have a few voice mails from you I am holding on to so I can hear your voice.

When you can, let me know you are settling in ok, hope the fan they have is awesome and amazing! I bet the Internet is fast! LOL...

Well back to work I go. Thanks for spending these days with me! I know it is hard being apart...but I will be there real soon.

I LOVE YOU SOOOO MUCH!

“ Dad,

There is a void here that will be hard to fill. Almost too peaceful and silent. Our spirits will forever be entwined. For I am blessed by our moments together we shared and the love that was always there no matter what. Hold onto my hugits from all of us.

*Love you Dad

“ Hey Dad....today it seems so much harder than the last few. You know I was up with you again at 4:00am; what was that that we were doing? I am still trying to figure that out. Mom says hi and wants you to know she loves you so much!

Don't worry about the mess I am cleaning up right now, I got it just like you wanted me to. Just going to take some time, but you know I will get it all right.

Will you let me know what you want me to do about the things we talked about his morning please, we got sidetracked, but I will get it done.

I AM MISSING YOU SO MUCH! I LOVE YOU!

“ Dad - I miss you so much! I love you so much!!! This is so hard without you! But we are going to be OK by the strength of God and the strength that we have from you watching us as only you can. Losing you has truly been the hardest thing I have ever imagined. Take good care of Tiger and Sandy and the other critters we had during our time here. My heart is so heavy and while God felt it was time, I was so not ready, too soon. I LOVE YOU DAD!!! I LOVE YOU!
