“ We will miss Curtis. We have been his neighbors for more than fifty years, throughout those years both Curtis and Ruby watched out for us. When my parents purchased this riverside property in the 70's it remained vacant for several years under Curtis & Ruby's watchful eyes with calls of wild happenings taking place on what became a sort of a free riverside access "Lover's Lane". The calls always started with Curtis saying, "Something is going on", my parents would drive down from our old house and start the yard cleanup with Curtis's help. The final straw came when Curtis & Ruby noticed a neighborhood young man who came frequently to the property climbing over the riverbank without a fishing pole. It was a timely mystery until this young man came back over the riverbank one day carrying what appeared to be fresh cut weeds. After Curtis's swift investigation my parents & police arrived to find " Something illegal was going on", a fence was erected soon after which gave all of us peace and years of laughter. It was always a comfort to look out and know Curtis was there, his was a life well lived. He was our North Star, now when we look out at Curtis's house our gaze moves to the night sky where there is a new star shining ever so brightly.
