It is with deep sadness that we announce the passing of Dwight Gaddis, who left us peacefully on Nov 5, 2024.

He was a talented athlete who quickly developed a passion for baseball. His enthusiasm for the game was evident throughout his youth, becoming a lifelong joy.

Dwight pursued higher education at Florida Southern College, where he earned his undergraduate degree. He then pursued an MBA from the University of Madison at Wisconsin. Armed with his degrees, he embarked on a distinguished career as an accountant.

Dwight served as the Director of Petroleum Accounting at the University of North Texas in Denton, TX, from 1990-1994, where he enhanced his expertise in the oil and gas industry by serving as a global subject matter expert, teaching courses from the United States to London, Nigeria, and beyond.

From 1995 to 2018, he enjoyed a successful career in the oil and gas field, where he spent many years working as a Controller and ultimately serving as CFO for private exploration and production companies. Throughout this time, he earned the respect and admiration of his colleagues and peers.

In retirement, Dwight cherished spending time with his beloved wife, Susan,
