“ Dylan was and will always be Like a brother to me. Our friendship goes back and was on the path to much longer. I've seen him mature into the amazing father and spouse that he left us as. When I saw him with Nora, he had a special look in his eyes. Dylan seemed complete with Nora and Kristin. Dylan had many hardships he went through. It seemed as though they were done. He will always live on through Nora and our hearts. I think back to something he told me in one of our many discussions of life, he told me when he thought of his mom gone that there was a hole in his heart that though can heal some would never be complete now. I've used that several times to describe grief, I just never thought I would use it with him.
I love you, Dylan. You will be missed and your memories cherished.
