“ Erin, there are so many things that I admire about you...especially your strength, courage and bravery. I am so glad to have gotten to know you because it's people like you that teach me so much. You teach people to appreciate the good days, find comfort in the ocean even through the waves and to face your fears with the faith and belief that no matter what challenges life throws at you, to humbly embrace it. You approached every day with the thought that whether you give the day a lot or give the day a little, be thankful that you were blessed by another day. You have affected the way I look at so many things and how deeply we can be affected by the people we connect with. One of those poignant moments in particular that will be forever imbedded in my memories. And it is within those words that I realized the impact of that, and how it shouldn't be taken lightly; especially with those who are extremely guarded about who they allow in their lives. Whether you are here or whether you are in Heaven, or whether you are soaring the blue skies freely - carefully observing and soaking it all in (as you always have done) - you will always be a part of our Soul Family, Erin. You have only deepened the meaning of those words and showed me how valuable those words are. Quite possibly the hardest - most important - lesson for me, of all. I love you, girl. ❤️

Josh and family, no one needs to tell you what an incredible person Erin was, or how much she loved her family...our hearts are heavy with you, but will share the sense of peace for the pain to no longer be with her. Heaven not only gained an Angel, but gained a Warrior.

Erin was delightful. She had the sweetest smile and biggest heart and I was an instant friend as well as cousin. Peace be with you and your family through this impossible grief.
