“ Dear Mrs. Thompson,
It wasn't until this evening that I learned of your husband's death. I am so very sorry for your loss.
Fifty eight years leaves you with many a memory. May those memories and your faith guide you through the toughest of times and bring to light the great love that you shared. My thoughts and prayers are with you and your family.

“ Mrs. Thompson,
I was so sorry to hear about George's death. I only wish I could have made it to the funeral services. He will be dearly missed by all. These will be difficult times for you and your family, but faith will carry you through. I know you are strong. We worked together for so many years, and you have touched so many lives!
May God bless you and your family, please call if there is anything I can do.
Love,
Ginny

“ I am so sorry for your families loss of George. I only knew Mr. Thompson unfortunately during his time of illness. He was always full of personality during his visits to the labortory for his blood work. You could always tell when he was feeling under the weather because he was not as perkey as usual. His constant personable personality thought his ordeal was inspiring to me. I was blessed to have known Mr. Thompson and will sadley miss seeing him for his weekley lab visits. It seemed he knew the secret to life; to make the everyday monotony of life to have purpose and meaning.

Take care,
