“ I happened to work with John extensively during the time of the ESP problems and the baghouse retrofits. A finer gentleman there never was! John is truly missed and Nancy and I extend our condolences to the family. I still remember the time I brought some bargain day old blueberry fritters to the plant and John threw them away as he thought they had gone bad because of the dark blueberry look. Another episode was when we had a Joy Western manager in from Canada. We went to dinner at a local barbecue restaurant and acquainted the fellow with jalapeno peppers. I never saw a person reach for the water so quickly.
