“ For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor another creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

“ Heartfelt condolences to the entier family. Mary, I am your sister Jane Chapman's fiancée, and she has told me a lot about you. Like Jane, I am a Christian, and consider a loss like yours as rebirth and renewal.

Just as we are born from the comfort of the womb into this world, we cry because we miss what we are used to and what we know. Then, when we meet Our Saviour and accept Him into our lives, we are reborn or born again, as the Bible says.

Death is also a big change from this life that we know and are comfortable with. It is passing, as the Bible says, "from death into life". It means an end to pain and suffering, and the beginning of the rest of life with God in Heaven.

So Mary, please feel the comfort of God right now, as you release Pedro into His caring hands.
